

Characters in the paintings have moved beyond creating fiction, the 'he said', 'she said' sort of narrative that makes them only imaginary beings. The viewer becomes part of this alternate world, begins to re-invent his or her own self. Recognition of the figures in the painting is entrapment within this new realm. The people in the pictures are looking out at the viewer, for affirmation that their lives are not meaningless.